

Make Sustainable Palm Oil the Norm! Here's How:

- Don't boycott products that contain palm oil; buy from sustainable brands instead. Palm oil produces more oil per hectare of land than other oils, so when grown sustainably, it is an environmentally-friendly ingredient.
- Encourage companies to use the certified sustainable palm oil logo on their products very few do, even though they use sustainable palm oil.
- Contact your favourite companies and urge them to go sustainable.
- Share what you learn with others.

More Resources:

- World Wildlife Fund Palm Oil Scorecard (palmoilscorecard.panda.org)
- Palm Oil Scan App

Best Choices

The companies below are leaders in using Certified Sustainable Palm Oil (CSPO) and are pushing the industry forward to make CSPO the norm.

- Arnott's Biscuits (Tim Tams)
- Ferrero (Nutella, Kinder, Ferrero Rocher, Tic Tac)
- IKEA (candles, chocolate)
- Kellogg's (Nutrigrain, Pop-Tart)
- Lindt (Lindor, Ghirardelli, Russell Stover)
- Mars (Starburst, M&M's, Skittles, Snickers)
- McDonald's
- Restaurant Brands Int'l (Tim Horton's, Burger King)
- Storck (Werther's, Merci)

Good Alternatives

The companies below have made strong commitments and have taken positive steps towards using Certified Sustainable Palm Oil in their products.

- Chanel (beauty products)
- Conagra Brands (Orville Redenbacher, Snack Pack, Chef Boyardee, Duncan Hines)
- Domino's Pizza
- Estée Lauder (Aveda, Clinique, MAC)
- Flowers Foods (Wonderbread, Nature's Own)
- General Mills (Betty Crocker, Pillsbury, Cheerios)
- GlaxoSmithKline (Sensodyne, Aquafresh)
- Hershey (Kisses, Reese, Kit Kat, Cadbury)
- Kraft Heinz
- Loblaws (President's Choice, No Name, Exact)
- L'Oréal (Garnier, NYX, Maybelline, Ombrelle)
- PepsiCo (Frito-Lay, Quaker)
- Smucker's (Jif)
- Yum! Brands (KFC, Pizza Hut, Taco Bell)

